Domestic violence on rise in county

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS Publisher Emeritus

The number of domestic violence cases investigated by the Hancock County Sheriff's Department took off at a rapid pace for January and February, 2005, compared to 2004, according to Sheriff Steve Garber.

For the first two months of 2004 there were 24 cases reported to the sheriff's office, while for the same period in 2005, the total calls were 63, according to statistics provided by Domestic Violence

Investigator Deron Cuevas. Garber said, "Even though domestic violence cases are on the rise, we are trying not only to solve the cases, but are trying preventive measures through education. Our department has one investigator devoted to

Shoreline developer plans condos

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER Staff Writer

Shoreline Development has applied for a permit from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers that would allow them to fill approximately 2.67 acres of wetlands along Breath Bayou. Plans for a condominium subdivision in Shoreline Park along the bayou were approved by the Hancock County Planning and Zoning Commission last month. Commissioners approved plat plans for 44 townhomes which will be located on 23 lots on Bayou View Drive.

Approval for the development was given over the protests of several nearby residents. Many were concerned with the increased traffic that high density development would bring to the area. Other residents spoke out in favor of the Developers described the proposed townhome community as an upscale development which will include extensive landscaping a boat launch and dock for use by residents only.

Not all of the wetlands on the site will be filled. Shoreline is proposing to avoid and enhance 1.27 acres of wetlands on site by eliminating invasive species currently existing and suppressing the growth of other invasive species. For mitigation of the 2.67 acres, Shoreline is proposing to purchase credits from an approved mitigation bank.

Professional politics: Big MS-take

Kirk Fordice, his Republican predecessor, wanted to get professional politics out of

then Haley Barbour is diametrically the opposite. However, the kind of professional politics introduced by Haley Barbour as governor is not of a homegrown traditional Mississippi variety. It's Washington style slash and burn politics.

That's the only kind of politics Barbour ever learned making millions as the top D.C. lobbyist, representing large corporations willing to pay big money to buy influence with the GOP shakers and movers on partisanship

Capitol Hill.

Previously, as Republican National Party chairman and its record-setting fund government, raiser-as well as the whip hand behind the 1994 Gingrich "contract with America" Congressional sweep--Barbour had gathered a bag of chips to get things done in Congress as a lobbyist.

Now, after being rewarded by Mississippi voters with their governorship, Barbour By Bill Minor has set about to impose ...

his Washington brand of partyline politics on a state that has the poorest people, and the nation's most medicallyneedy, a state which had never before seen hard-line

Legislature.

Over five decades I have closely watched what goes on at the Capitol. When a pressing need with a broad public support arose, warring factions in the Legislature (be they within one party), came together, and with the help of the chief executive, solved it. Even if it took raising taxes.

Barbour has thrown out all the problem-solving experience of the past at the State Capitol. He addresses the monumental crises Mississippi faces in funding Medicaid and the landmark Adequate Education Program as mere opportunities to validate his philosophy that no new taxes is always the best medicine to. problèm.

The stark reality, meantime, is that 780,000 poor citizens can lose their health care, and 500.000 school kids will have classes only four days a week because local school administrators can't afford to hire enough teachers, unless the state comes up with the money to prevent that from happening.

There's a $700 million gap between anticipated revenue and 2006 budget needs. Some cuts are inevitable, but rationally, the state needs an infusion of at least $400 million in the state revenue stream from upward adjustments in the tax structure.

Certainly there's not going to be any sudden boom in state's economy to generate the kind of new revenue that is needed. So deal with any governmental the only way is to raise some taxes.

Children should learn responsibility

the Bay-Waveland school board meeting on March 14, 2005, I am appalled and amazed at the behavior exhibited at this meeting concerning a field trip of Second Street Elementary students. It is my understanding that some students will not be allowed to attend the field trip due to the lack of responsibility shown by some students. For example: students who never do homework, turn in class work, or have a number of office referrals, are the students in question. Is it fair to the majority of students who repeatedly exhibit responsibility for all areas that the others be allowed to attend the field trip? I don't think so. The newsletter sent out by the school was misunderstood by some of the parents. Mr. Reed was trying to get the students who were not performing their assigned task a chance

To highlight a few, the Senate amended and approved House Bill 1268, which would allow casinos on the Gulf Coast to be placed on permanent structures. Current law mandates that casinos must be built on a floating structure. Placement on a permanent structure could reduce the risk of damage to casinos from natural disasters such as hurricanes. The closing of casinos as a result of a natural disaster could result in loss of revenue to the state as well as wages to the employees in the industry. The bill as it passed the Senate does not change the locations on the Coast where gaming may be conducted. It simply allows casinos to be placed on pilings or similar structures at locations that are currently legal.

officers would be required to ask for proof of insurance at roadblocks. It would also require proof of insurance before receiving a license tag and an inspection sticker. This bill allows for a better method of enforcing current requirements for Mississippi motorists to carry liability insurance. In turn, it serves as a way of helping protect all motorists on our roads from unnecessary hardships in the event of an accident. HB 1058, regarding child abuse laws, was amended by the Senate to prohibit exploitation of a child by causing him or her to take part in sexually provocative pictures. It also revises the penalties for exploitation of children. If the House concurs, the bill would also set stricter penalties for those who abuse or knowingly permit the abuse of a child. In addition, under this bill child endangerment would include allowing a child to be present where an individual is in the act of manu-controlled substance.

by State Sen. Scottle Chevas

With the deadline for the Senate to act on House appropriations and revenue bills approaching, the Senate also worked to clear the calendar of these items. The procedure for most of these bills was to pass an amendment that inserts Senate language in place of the House bill. For instance, on the House bill dealing with appropriation of funds for Medicaid, we passed an amendment that designated the same amount of funds as recommended by the Budget Legislative Committee. The process of inserting an amendment in lieu of the House bill is the traditional process to ensure conference is invited on the bills. Once all of the bills make it to conference, we will have a better view of the scope of our budget and will be better able to set our priorities.

In addition to action on the Senate floor, Senate and House conferees worked diligently on HB 1668. After facturing and/or selling a many days and numerous hours, an agreement was reached, and both chambers approved the conference report. The bill aims to attract SteelCorr to open a plant in Columbus, MS. It is important to note that before any legislative action was taken, the plan for the plant underwent the intense scrutiny of the MS Development Authority. Also, 96% of the funds for the project will come from the private sector. In addition, the bill has safeguards built in to protect Mississippi's investment. The plant could employ close to 500 workers at a $70,000 yearly average income.

Furthermore, the conferees from the Senate and House continued to meet and on the Medicaid technical amendments bill. The conferees are trying to reach an agreement that will provide Medicaid to our State's most needy and vulnerable people while bringing Medicaid back in line to a financially viable program for our State. There are several other bills that are in including conference Campaign Finance Reform the Mississippi Education Reform Act, 2005. Work on these bills will begin in earnest when conferees are named. As always, I welcome any comments or questions you may have. You may contact me at (601) 359-3221.

Taxes are, of course, at the heart of the divisiveness, worsened by the stuckin-concrete stance against kind of revenue enhancement being taken Barbour and his Republican cohorts.

Tuck, the ex-Democrat, and Sen. Terry Burton of Newton, another party switcher, and a leading Barbour leg man in joint Senate-House conferences on major funding measures, have both been among the most vocal foes of any new taxes.

Yet both of them, as members of the Senate when the Legislature in 1992 upped the sales tax from 6 to 7 cents to stabilize endangered education programs, not only voted for the bill but also voted to override the veto of thengovernor Fordice.

Even if you aren't Irish, you can always participate in March 17th's St. Patrick's Day festivities. But it's even better to celebrate it when you know how the holiday came to be.

St. Patrick is truly one of Ireland's biggest celebrities, the patron saint and national apostle of Ireland credited with bringing Christianity to the country. Most agree that St. Patrick was born in Britain near the end of the fourth century. At 16, he was taken prisoner for more than six years by Irish raiders who attacked his family's estate. During his imprisonment, he became a devout Christian, using religion as a source of comfort.

St. Patrick escaped his imprisonment after allegedly hearing a voice telling him to leave Ireland. He then began his religious training after having 1 another dream which told him to become a missionary. He was ordained as a priest and was sent to Ireland to convert more people to minister Christianity and Christians living in Ireland. Patrick integrated traditional ritual into his lessons of Christianity instead of completely eliminating the Irish's religious beliefs. For example, he held bonfires at Easter because the Irish honored their gods with fire. To make the cross a part of the Irish Catholic lifestyle, he placed an image of the sun, an Irish symbol, onto the cross, creating the Celtic cross.

Legend has it that Patrick died on March 17 - hence St. Patrick's Day around the fifth century. The Irish have held celebrations on this day for thousands of years. Irish families attended church and threw celebrations. Though it fell during Lent when Catholics were forbidden to eat meat, people still danced, drank and ate Irish bacon (corned beef) and cabbage.

Today, the holiday of St. Patrick's 2 Day is celebrated worldwide by people of all religions. In modern Ireland, the holiday draws people from all around the world and features a multi-day celebration with parades, concerts, plays and fireworks.

Volunteers needed for Special Olympics at Stennis in April

A most special event will be happening at the Stennis Space Center on April 2. More than 250 athletes will compete in the annual Special Olympics Track and Field evénts.

SSC has been hosting these games for more than twenty years and, according to this year's chairperson, Carol Nichols, Naval Meteorology Oceanography Command, each year the games get better and better.

But to continue to do so, 400 volunteers are needed for game day.

We need volunteers to work directly with athletes, to run the events and games, and to just help out,' said Nichols.

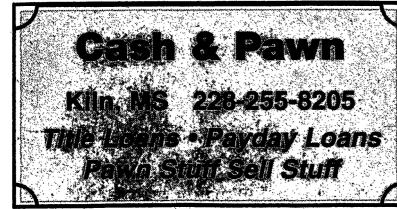

Athletes from Hancock, Harrison, Pearl River and Stone Counties will spend the day in competitions patterned on the World Olympics. These include relays, bocce ball, wheelchair races, assisted walks. badminton. basketball, standing and running long jumps, shot put, dashes, and much more.

The mission of Special Olympics is to provide year round sports training and athletic competition in a variety of Olympic type sports for all mentally handicapped children and

This gives the athletes the continuing opportunities to develop physical fitness, demonstrate courage, experience joy, and participate in the sharing of gifts, skills, and friends with their families, other Special Olympians, and the commu-

domestic violence investigations."

"Often what begins as a simple domestic violence case, quiet frequently leads to a more serious crime. Domestic violence stems from many causes, such as divorces, dating relationships, child custody, property disputes, and as in most criminal cases, drugs and alcohol is a factor in many domestic violence cases,' Garber added.

For the year of 2004, the sheriff's office handled 343 cases of domestic violence, of which 259 victims were females and 84 males.

The busiest month of 2004 was June with 47 cases, 37 female and 10 male victims. September was the highest month for male victims with 12 out of a total of 32 cases, according to Cuevas' statistics.

Of the 36 cases investigated in January 2005, 24 involved dating relationships and spouse, or former relationships. Of the 27 February, 2005 cases, 22 involved dating relationships, spouses, or former spouses.

Chief Investigator Kenny Hurt said, "Many of the domestic violence cases involve the same people. This even with our Justice Court Judges dishing out stiff penalties for those proven guilty of domestic violence."

Domestic violence covers physical assaults, verbal abuse, family disturbances, parents against a child, child against a parent, dating relationships and other family, or household disturbances, Cuevas said.

An interesting thing about the domestic violence cases reported in Hancock County to the sheriff's office, is the fact that a vast majority involves officers and continuing to cause a disturbance by cursing and returning to the scene of the assault, the report says. He was taken to the Justice facility on a $500 bond.

Harris has a different story. He says he was walking down the street when he saw six or seven men beating one man, Holden.

"I thought they were going to beat him to death," Harris said. "It was like a massacre. I believed they would have killed him if I didn't stop them."

Harris said he charged the group at about waist level to try to stop the beat-

Harris said that Holden's fiancé thanked him for his actions.

In a separate report Varnell said that additional affidavits and warrants for simple assault have been issued for seven people related to the case, but that arrests have not yet been made.

"It's a wish list and a list of objectives, but no plan. It's very vague...It is inadequate in providing academic goals and how they intend to reach them. There's no plan. There's no specifics.'

Dr. Rick Saucier, who authored the plan, and Superintendent David Kopf defended it to the board. Saucier said that long-ranging plans were, by nature, much more flexible.

Kopf said he felt the five year plan was very adequate.

Bay-Waveland recognizes Teachers of the Year

THE SEA COAST ECHO The Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District Board of Trustees recently recognized those teachers named Teacher of the Year.

Bay-Waveland Middle School sixth-grade teacher Connie Roth was not only named the Middle School's Teacher of the Year, but was also named the district's Teacher of the Year by a three-member panel. Roth has master's degrees from Colorado State University and Oklahoma State University. She joined the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District in 1995 from Clare Elementary School.

English teacher Jane Knebel was named Bay High School Teacher of the Year. Knebel is affectionately known as the 'Goddess of Grammar,' and the 'Empress of English,' by her students. She is a graduate of the University of Southern Mississippi and taught in the Biloxi Public Schools before coming to the Bay-Waveland District in 1995.

Blanca Perez is putting the final touches on her mural in the OLA Chapel.

OLA senior Blanca Perez decorates school chapel

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Blanca Perez, senior at Our Lady Academy, will leave her personal touch at her school when she graduates in May.

She spent most of her Christmas vacation painting a mural in the OLA school chapel where windows had been previously.

The Junior Class recently painted and refurbished the chapel, and Sister Jackie Howard, OLA Principal, upon the recommendation of Joy Mehrtens, Chair of the Fine Arts Department, asked Perez to paint the

The scene Perez chose to paint is the view of the Bay of St. Louis from the Our Lady of the Gulf Church Memorial Walkway, which is located next to OLA and OLG Church.

Originally a class room, the space of the current chapel was dedicated as a Chapel of the Word on February 27, 1996, by John Switzer, OLA Religious Studies Teacher at the time.

Daughter of Maclovia and Jose Perez and born in Toluca, Mexico, Perez came to OLA in the 9th grade.

Perez loves to draw and paint and took Advanced Art last year. She also loves to run and received a varsity letter jacket in cross country.

"OLA is a very welcoming school," said Perez. "I have enjoyed my senior year. I like the teachers, and I have made good friends."

She even solicited help from some of her friends over Christmas.

Perez plans to attend Mississippi University and hopes to major in art or architecture.

DCE doubles courses in digital camera use

Waveland, MS, daughter, Betty Watson of Pearland,

BY BILL ROBBINS

Diamondhead Continuing Education program of adult courses is continuing to expand its offerings with a Spring session that now includes two classes in handling photos taken with digital cameras. New this Spring is a class in photo editing, whether the pictures were taken with a digital camera or were scanned into a computer. The course will teach how to crop and rotate photos as well as how to change contrast and brightness, how to save photos in different formats, which is best for emailing and which is better for printing. The fee for the course is $60.

The photo editing course, like the "Fun With Photos," class, which will be offered again this spring, will be taught by Yvette Richard, who also teaches two other computer courses.

Once again, computers are the most popular courses, totaling seven of the 23 being offered. Others include art classes ranging from watercolors to sculpture, three dancing classes, four classes in Yoga and Tai Chi, conversational Spanish, Calligraphy, and Bridge.

Classes begin the week of April 4. Registration for all courses will be conducted Thursday, March 17, 6-8 p.m., and Friday, March 18, 2-4 p.m. in the Former Pro Shop/ 19th Hole. For further information, those interested may call DCE's superintendent Hilda

Under the Trade Adjustment Assistance (TAA) Program, the USDA helps producers of agriculfollowing offices serve the tural commodities adjust to competition from imports by providing them technical assistance, cash payments and opportunities for job retraining. For a commodity to be approved for payments, producers must petition the Administrator of the Foreign Agricultural Service. Approval of the commodity will occur if the Administrator determines that producer prices in the most recent marketing year were 80 percent or less than the average of prices in the preceding five marketing years, and that increases in imports of "like" or "directly competitive" commodities contributed importantly to the decline in prices. The effort is part of a Cooperative Research and (CRADA) between OSSI Meteorology

Oceanography Command (CNMOC). The three-year R&D program will explore the Navy's usage of open source software within their Web services, scientific computing and enterprise architecture systems.

The CRADA is the second such major R&D program between the U.S. Navy and the Hattiesburg-based OSSI. The initial CRADA between the Navy and OSSI was conducted between October 2001 and 2004 and enabled the Navy to identify and document extensive usage of open source applications and programs within their enterprise systems.

"Open source" describes software whose license agreement permits unrestricted access to the software program's source code, internal blueprint. Developers and users of open source software are legally allowed, and encour- the Navy's software develaged, to update, share and opment, maintenance and

What can I do about all those weeds in my yard?

BY GWEN SMITH MSU Hancock County Extension Office

Most of these weeds are what we term as winter annuals. Many of these weeds will die shortly when warm up and stay there.

warm up and stay there.

They are flowering heavily now which is why you see the bright purples, yellows, and whites the lands scape. Since they are flowering and into a reproductive stage there is really little point in spraying most of these weed species now with a herbicide to kill them as they will be completing their life cycle and are dying soon anyway.

Probably, the best remedy is to simply mow them to remove most of the leaf and flower canopy and you see so summer annuals such as crabgrass, goosegrass, prostrate spurge and the like may take their place if a preemergence herbicide is not applied this spring.

There are a few perennial winter weeds that you may want to control now such as wild garlic, dandelions, clover, plantains, etc. so broadleaf post-emerge herbicides such as 2,4-D, dicamba, mecoprop, clopyralid, metsulfuron, and others may be used effectively. For further information on specific herbicides look for the extension publication number 1532 Weed Control Guidelines for Mississippi on the www.msu.cares.com web site.

Sicily's Ultimate Italian Biffet

To know Sicily's is to love Sicily's, one visit to Sicily's Ultimate Italian Buffet and you'll know why. Family oriented Sicily's offers fine Italian food at reasonable prices. The success of Sicily's is due to their commitment of providing guest the highest quality ingredients, great service, selection and value.

vice, selection and value. Sicily's Ultimate Italian Buffet has the largest salad bar in Bay St. Louis. The produce is hand selected and brought in fresh every day. Sicily's pizza dough is made fresh daily and is the building block for their award winning gourmet pizzas. Only the finest ingredients are selected for Sicily's pizza, such as the best mozzarella cheese, the #1 Italian sausage in the nation, and the best quality pepperoni; Sicily's is the only restaurant, that I know of, that will take a request for a pizza that is not on the buffet, and bring it to your table at no extra charge.

Salad and pizza are not the only items available on the buffet, there is surely something to please every member of your family. You can choose from pasta dishes, lasagna, heart healthy baked chicken, various vegetables, rice dishes, soups and gumbo; (The gumbo is truly delicious and my personal favorite). Everything is seasoned by hand. Nothing is purchased already prepared. Even the salad dressings are hand made.

Save room for the gourmet coffee and dessert bar. Indulge in phenomenal pizza desserts, such as Mom's apple pie, blueberry, cherry or rocky road, or try one or more of the many other desserts available such as the cheesecake - a perfect ending to a delicious meal.

On Tuesdays, kids 10 & under eat absolutely free with a paying adult. Wednesdays are senior citizen day. Remember everything on Sicily's buffet is available for carryout or order from the a la carte menu.

Bay claims state title with 53-44 win over Callaway

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II

Staff Writer It was raining three point shots in the Big House" on Saturday as the Lady Tigers of Bay High claimed their second Class 4A state title in three years.

The Lady Tigers connected on 12-of-23 from beyond the arc and made just one two-point basket in the game. For the game, Tamara Reed connected on 7-for-10 three-point shots while Bay High got two three's from Kendra Reed and Sara Gilmore and one three-point bucket from Crystal Skretching. The Lady Tigers were also 15for-23 from the charity stripe.

Bay High head coach Debbie Triplett said, "This was a great win. It was our goal from the beginning. We ran into a little trouble in the South State tournament but we got back on track and things fell into place. In the game, we were a little nervous. We wanted to deny Juanita Ward looks at the goal but she hit the first few shots for Callaway. We went over some things, at halftime and made some adjustments and played much better in the second half."

The state title was the second for Bay High in the last three seasons as the Lady Tigers advanced to the state title game for the fourth consecutive year. In 2002, the Lady Tigers lost to Jackson Provine 60-58 and won the Class 4A title in 2002 defeating Canton 67-63, In 2002, Kendra Reed was a sophomore helping older sister, Stephanie, win a state title. This year the roles were reversed as Tamara Reed held Kendra net her second state title.

Last year, the Lady Tigers lost to Northeast Jones but got a taste of revenge by eliminating them in the South State consolation game a little over two weeks ago. The Lady Tigers also advanced to the state title game in 1998 against Oxford. Kendra Reed is headed to USM in Hattiesburg to play for the Lady Golden Eagles and former Hancock North Central star Joye Lee-McNelis. However, there are other Lady Tigers getting some recruiting buzz in Sara Gilmore, Destiny Crystal and Porter, Skretching.

Triplett commented. "These seniors are a special group. They have come up throught the system together. They have worked as hard as any coach could ever ask of them. A picture hangs in the family room of my home. It has faded with time, but the face of the person inside the frame is as young as ever. His hat sits slightly askew atop his head, and his smile is one of nervous anticipation.

He is wearing a military uniform. I know him only from the stories that I have heard about him and from that picture on the wall. He was my great uncle, and he New Orleans, Louisiana, in 1944 to fight in World War II. He fought Hitler's troops across Europe and helped to liberate war-torn France and Italy. The young soldier returned home many months later, quite different from the man he had been prior to the war. As we celebrate the service of our veterans, we cannot forget the services of those fighting battles today. America's newest veterans are returning from the war in Iraq. The war that they are fighting is very different. from the war that my great uncle fought in Europe. They are not fighting one or two men with large armies. They are fighting many terrorists with thousands of followers. The enemy cannot always be seen, and he does not play by any rules of war. Today our troops are facing those who value the death of democracy over life itself. We as a nation must come together to honor and celebrate the services of these modern day soldiers, for their sacrifices are no greater and no less than those of any other veterans.

In every generation, we have rejoiced at the homecoming of America's sons daughters mourned for those who were not to return.

The celebration of our veterans' service to America is a celebration of life and death, of joy and sorrow. We remember the lessons that they have taught us about war and peace. We honor their sacrifices for the cause of freedom and the spread of democracy in foreign lands. THE SEA COAST ECHO he Bay St. Louis Theatre present "Dark Deed's at Swan's Place or Never Trust a Tattooed Sailor," with performances on March 18, 19, 25, 26 at 8 p.m. and March 205 at 2 p.m. at the John F. Holmes Playhouse, 301 Boardman Avenue, Bay St. Louis.

The play is a tongue-incheek melodrama, written by Tim Kelly BSLLT dedicates these performances to the memory of actor-director Teddy Stechmann, who always wanted to present a melodrama. Set in the Old West during the "Gold Rush" the story is loaded with laughs and comic delight, seedy jokes and escapist entertainment. The villain and his henchwoman make a tidy profit shanghaiing young lads to ships that sail from California to the China Seas. They operate from a disreputable tavern owned by a grizzled prospector, who dies and wills the tavern to an innocent niece, an orphan. The villain must get rid of the damsel. Enter an English sailor with a love for the theatre. He offers the niece his protection and the hilarity goes into high gear! Soldiers, widows, society matrons, cowboys, mysterious figures, and a crusty sea captain collide to make the mirth even merrier.

CAST BIOGRAPHIES

Glenda Schornick MOTHER McGOOF

Glenda has been around this theatre over 20 years acing, directing, and serving several stints on the Board of Directors. She is currently chairperson of the Guild which is a group that reviews plays, solicits directors and recommends "a Season" to the Board. She is the proud spouse of this play's villain "Montague Leech."

Chris Flynn - CAPTAIN BERMUDA/

LT. LORNE ORDER This is the second production for Chris at BSLLT. Before playing Mo in Men of Stone he took a hiatus from acting for 15 years! He currently lives in the country with his squatters (parents) on eleven acres.,

Kathy Mauffray- CAR-LOTA CASTANET de SAN DIEGO - Kathy has been in many productions at BSLLT and other theatres including Wait until Dark, Bull in a China Shop, Something Funny Happened on the Way to the Forum, How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying. Kathy has a Master's Degree in Education and is presently teaching High School Science in Gulfport High School. She is married to her co-performer, Lex Mauffray

Jack Schornick - MON-TAGUE LEECH - Jack has done several plays for BSLLT including a one man in Dark Deeds at Swan's show Mark Twain Tonite. Born in Oklahoma and raised by oil field trash, he is presently an Auctioneer and illegal money lender.

Bob Davis - SOUR-DOUGHT BIRTHRIGHT/ PREACHER

Bob is a retired Defense

Department employee, moved to Bay St. Louis from Arlington, VA, six years ago (and has never looked back). He loves the climate (except hurricanes), the ambiance (except for the gnats), and the friendly people of the Gulf Coast. This is Bob's first outing with the BSLLT, and it follows a 30+ year absence for the stage. His last appearance, as a gambler in Guys and Dolls was with the Naples (Italy) Little Theater in 1973. Break a leg!

Ken Wesley SWAN - Ken Libba Tallant - DEATH

and TOWNSWOMAN -Libba has participated in four productions during the past year at Bay St. Louis Little Theater. She began her career as Assistant to the director or Fuddy Meers and also worked as backstage crew during that production. She then worked as the technical consultant for WIT and had her first onstage experience in that play. She next worked backstage during Men of Stone. She has now reached the pinnacle of her career with her stunning performance

Lex Mauffray

RAWHIDE - Lex is a native of Bay St. Louis and currently teaches at Hancock High School. He returned to the theatre for The Hobbit and has since done Little Shop of Horrors, Mr. Roberts, A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum, How to Succeed in Business, Fuddy Meers and Men of Stone all at BSLLT. Lex is a natural cowboy and keeps you laughing as Rawhide.

Cheryl Grace - TAI PAN -Cheryl has been acting in community and dinner theatre in New Orleans. Since moving to Bay St. Louis, she has become involved with BSLLT. In How to Succeed in Business, she was choreographer and "Miss Jones." She played "Gertie" in Fuddy Meers and played "Vivian Bearing" in WIT, a BlueJay Way production. Cheryl is enjoying playing a Chinese Lotus Blossom.

STEPHEN CHERYL

Annette Allard BERTHA BIRTHRIGHT -

Annette is the daughter of Rick and Wendy Allard. She currently attends OLA and lives in Pass Christian. This is her first show at BSLLT and she has done several shows at both St. Stanislaus and Center Stage in Gulfport, where she appeared in her first play Sleeping Beauty.

Deborah Goudeau

MARY FAIRWEATHER -

Deborah is a new comer to the theatre with no previous experience in any capacity. She is married with five children living ' in Diamondhead. Mississippi. She shares her other time as an artist and an animal behaviorist, specializing in horses and dogs. Along with her husband, she owns Thunder Hooves Farm in Perkinston, Mississippi, where she breeds and trains Appaloosa and Shire horses. Sandy Reese - MS.

AUGUSTA GUSH - Sandy Belle Penrose - MYSTE-RIOUS WOMAN - Belle

Alexandra Davalos SIGN GIRL - Alexandra has been singing and acting all of her life. Her first show was at her church, Christus Victor Lutheran Evangelical Church of Ocean Springs, in a production of TO THE CASTLE - a musical for stewards with director Amy Bearson. Then she appeared as a protector of Dorothy - a Dancer in KNS's Wizard of Oz. directed and choreographed by Loree Dalgo. Alexandra has worked backstage with BSLLT's Noises Off, Men of Stone, and Dark Deeds during the past two years. This is her first time on stage at Bay St. Louis Little Theatre.

THE SEA COAST ECHO Earth Fest is a fun way for people to learn about saving the environment.

Exhibitors representing groups from the non-profit and governmental sectors as well as businesses involved with environmental issues will help Zoo visitors answer questions for prizes on Pepsi's Earth Quest game. Some lucky visitors will have a chance to register to win an X-Box from Pepsi.

Visitors who bring a can of leftover paint to the Green Project Tent at the Zoo during Earth Fest receive one child admission FREE!

You can't have a festival without food and music in New Orleans and Earth Fest is no exception. Tastetempting Louisiana fare (sausage gumbo, shrimp poboys, crabcakes with crawfish sauce and more!) and local music from Summers and the Summer's Heat, Jon Cleary and the Absolute Monster Gentlemen, Voodoo Funk and Soul and the Blue Meanies. Folk artists from across the Southeast will offer works for sale such as drawings, paintings and other creations made of recycled materials. Guests can make crazy critter creations from recycled material in the Litter Critter Tent or sample bug cuisine in the Eat-A-Bug Tent!

At this year's Earth Fest, visitors can learn much more about how zookeepers keep the animals happy and healthy with a full line-up of activities like a camel frozen pop feeding, orangutan t-shirt toss, lemur treat bags, donkey boomer balls and Saki monkey weight training. All these are enrichment activities designed by the animal staff to engage and interest Audubon's animal collection while educating our guests. Check out the website http://www.auduboninstitute.org for the full schedule of fun animal happenings.

Audubon Zoo is located at 6500 Magazine Street in New Orleans. Admission to Earth Fest is included in regular Zoo admission. Audubon Zoo members are always admitted free of charge.

For information on Earth Fest 2005 at Audubon Zoo, phone (504) 581-4629 or toll free 1-866-ITS-A-ZOO (1-Audubon's website at www.auduboninstitute.org.

No coolers, ice chests or outside food and beverage are allowed at Earth Fest.

Main Stage Acts Saturday, March 19: Bill Summers and the Summer's Heat at 1:30; Jon Cleary and the Absolute Monster Gentlemen at 3:30 Sunday, March 20:

Voodoo Funk and Soul at 1:30: Blue Meanies at 3:30 Audubon Zoo is accredited by the American Zoo and Aquarium Association (AZA). Look for the AZA logo whenever you visit a zoo or aquarium as your assurance that you are supporting a facility dedicated to providing excellent care for animals, a great experience for you, and a better future for all living things. With its more than 200 accredited members, AZA is a leader in global wildlife conservation, and your link to helping animals in their 866-487-2966) or visit native habitats. reason you bought the vehicle you are driving? Was it because of its performance and luxury features? Or did you buy it for safety, fuel economy or because it is environmentally friendly?

Whatever the reason, the vehicle you drive has much more in common with other vehicles on the road than you may know. No matter if it is a luxury car or an economy model, an SUV or a light truck, all vehicles, as well as their individual components and systems, are designed and manufactured to performance and test standards developed by the Society of Automotive Engineers (SAE International). SAE is a nonprofit, technical association engine performance," says leading whose mission is to advance Jack Pokrzywa, manager of mobility technology to better

SAE's work also provides the basis for global mobility standards. The society serves as the official U.S. representative on automotive standards to the International Standards Organization. It also works closely with the International Federation of Automotive Engineering Societies (FISITA) to develop and encourage adherence to global mobility standards.

In addition to automotive standards, SAE also develops performance and testing guidelines for commercial offroad vehicles, motorsports, nautical and aerospace industries.

Founded in 1905, SAE's original name was the Society of Automobile Engineers. Henry Ford, creator of the Model T, was the Society's first vice president. In 1916, Orville Wright and others in the fledgling aeronautics industry petitioned the Society to extend mem-

That year, SAE widened its scope to also standards were used as a include the tractor and power-boating industries. Recognizing its expanding role among mobility professionals, the Society changed its name to the Society of "Automotive" Engineers. "Automotive," was chosen because it describes any selfpropelled vehicle.

Over the years, SAE has evolved into a global forum for technical information exchange. Its annual World Congress meeting in Detroit hosts more than 35,000 attendees including those from Europe, Asia, and other regions. During its illustrious 100-year history, SAE has grown from 30 members 100 years ago, to approximately 85,000 members, worldwide, today.

. "For the most part, the work done by SAE and its members and the impact it has on motorists' driving experience is not visible to the general public," says Pokrzywa. # nthetic Oils Boost a Car's Performance n recent years, there has been a steady rise. in the use of synthetic motor oils because of their superior performance benefits. Just about everyone can benefit from them because they help your car's engine function better in so many ways. In addition to lubricating and cooling engine parts, motor oil promotes easy starting, protects the engine from corrosion and oxidation, keeps the engine clean, forms a tight seal between piston rings and cylinder walls and helps the engine use fuel efficient

Learn about how you can benefit from synthetic motor oils and lubricants with this information, courtesy of AMSOIL INC., a manufacturer of the first synthetic motor oil for automobiles in 1972.

Q: What is the difference between conventional and synthetic motor oil?

A: Conventional lubricants are refined from crude oil, which consists of thousands of types of molecules, which each have a different set of physical properties. In contrast, synthetic oils are made by reacting specific chemicals with a catalyst. The outcome is a fluid with exceptional molecular uniformity, resulting in improved properties and performance as compared to its petroleum counterpart. Because of this uniformity, synthetic oils excel in reducing friction and wear, offer improved fuel economy and function in both high and low temperature extremes, far beyond conventional oils. Q: My friend says synthetic oils are better for the environment. I say that improperly disposed, synthetic oils aren't really any better. Who's right?

ment by using synthetic motor oils.

A: You are both right. The environmental benefits of synthetic lubricants are most apparent when you consider their extended drain capabilities. Synthetic compressor oils last eight times longer than their petroleum counterparts. This means eight times less waste oil to dispose of. Synthetic motor oils for cars and light trucks have drain recommendations of two to 10 times conventional petroleum depending on the product and the manufacturer. Fewer oil changes means less waste oil as well as less container waste disposal.

However, synthetic motor oils require the same disposal care as traditional petroleum motor oils.

Q: I know synthetic motor oil is better in winter cold. but how do they benefit people who live in hot weather climates like in Arizona or South Texas?

A: Oil volatility is the measure of how susceptible an oil is to boil-off under high heat conditions. Most petroleum oils experience significant boil-off during high temperature engine operation and are expelled into the environment. The thicker oil left behind contributes to damaging deposits, sticky piston rings and oil blow-by, all contributing to reduced life and drag on performance. Synthetic oils are more impervious to this kind of degradation. The lower volatility of synthetics is another reason they are better for the environment than conventional products.

Q: Are there any advantages to conventional petroleum oils?

A: Petroleum-based motor oils have an initial price advantage over synthetics. In advancing the cost issue, remember that even the most expensive motor oil is cheaper than engine repairs caused by inadequate metal to metal protection or generlubricant failure. Synthetics have been proven to give superior year-round protection and performance.

When motorists evaluate their lubricant costs on a per year or per mile basis, rather than on the basis of cost per oil change, synthetic motor oils with extended drain intervals are found to cost less than conventional motor

Q: Will synthetic motor oils void my warranty?

A: No. Manufacturers call for API SL-rated motor oil of specific viscosity grades and usually do not distinguish between conventional or synthetic lubricants. Some highperformance cars, like the Chevrolet Corvette, are filled with synthetic motor oil at the factory and recommend the use of synthetics.

Q. Is there such a thing as synthetic grease? A: Not only are there synthetic greases, you can find synthetic gear lubes, transmission fluids and two cycle oils. Racers have seen increased horsepower throughout their equipment by using synthetics throughout the drivetrain.

Synthetics lubricants should also be used in the transmission of your tow vehicles as well. Pulling cars and rigs to the track put extra demands on transmissions and petroleum tranny fluid breaks down more quickly under these conditions. Synthetic-based transmission fluids last up to three times longer than their conventional counterparts.

Q: Where can I get more information about synthetic lubricants?

A: Get a free product catalog with information on synthetics by calling Amsoil at (800) 777-8491 or visiting www.amsoil.com.

Correct Spark Plugs Vital for Engine Efficiency

s a driver, it's important to remember the importance of spark plugs in engine performance. When not properly chosen or installed, engine performance and efficiency can suffer and engine damage can occur. Learning about the spark plug options out there can help you make wise decisions in the maintenance of your vehicle.

HEAT RANGE

Heat range, one of a spark plug's most important characteristics, is the capability of a plug to transfer excess heat from the plug's insulator tip to the cylinder head. Spark plugs are available in different heat ranges to accommodate the operating conditions of different engines and driving conditions.

A spark plug must operate hot enough to stay clean, or not foul (normal plug wear at left, fouled plug at right) and cold enough to prevent pre-ignition, otherwise known as premature ignition of the air/fuel mixture.

OTHER PLUG FACTORS

When choosing spark plugs, it's not all about selfcleaning temperature and heat range. There are also other factors that come into play. A variety of spark plug designs makes it important for consumers to understand the differences so you'll install the right plugs to keep your vehicle running properly. Differences in spark plugs include heat range, reach. diameter, whether the plug has a gasket or a tapered seat without a gasket, the number of ground electrodes, and insulator length. All these specifications must be appropriate for your particular vehicle, Hallis says.

"When installing new plugs, it's important to compare the new plugs with the old to make sure certain features match, especially if you are switching from one brand to another. Compare the reach, or the length of the threads, as well as whether the plugs have a gasket or a tapered seat," Hallis advises. Some engines today, for instance, are utilizing spark plugs with a much longer reach." These plugs have a longer thread area at the base of the plug; and are designed to extract more heat away from the cylinders. But these "longer reach" plugs must only be installed in engines that were designed for them. A plug with too long of a reach can result in major engine damage in some vehicles. Conversely, a plug with too short a reach can build up carbon deposits on the exposed threads and make it difficult to install the correct plugs in the future.

There is a reason for every aspect, of a spark plug's design. Manufacturers such as Bosch offer choices in pretrodes provide an even wider mium spark plugs based on heat range years of experience in consumer applications and consistent success on race tracks around the world. ummer rainstorms can quickly reduce visibility and create conditions. In stormy conditions, it is more difficult to see other vehicles, road signs and the road itself.

And when you're driving in the rain at night, you must contend with glare from headlights and street lights. To keep safe on the road when driving in the rain, motorists need to take steps so they can see and be seen. Follow these wet weather safety tips, courtesy of American Automobile Association (AAA).

1. Regularly clean your car's windshield and windows, both inside and outside. If you smoke, take extra care to make sure your interior windows are clear of smoke residue build-up. 2. Regularly check headlights, taillights, brake lights and turn signals to make sure they are working prop-

3. As soon as rain begins, turn on headlights and windshield wipers. Many states dangerous driving require headlights to be turned on when it is raining or if the visibility is less than 500 feet.

4. When visibility is so limited that the edges of the road or other vehicles cannot be seen at a safe distance, pull over and wait for the rain to ease up.

It is best to stop at a rest area or other protected location. If the roadside is your only option, pull off as far as possible, preferably past the end of a guardrail. Keep headlights on and turn on emergency flashers to alert other drivers to your parked location.

5. In addition to reduced visibility, rain creates slippery roads that require motorists use extra caution. When driving in rain, slow down and increase the distance between vehicles to compensate for reduced tire traction.

Protect Yourself from Buying a 'Lemon'

"f you have ever purchased a used vehicle, you likely took it to an automotive mechanic to have it checked out after you've bought it. That's a great idea that can save you from "buyer's remorse." But there's actually one other consider.

Many auto body or collision repair facilities offer a "pre-purchase" check of ased vehicles. This service, for which there may be a fee, can help determine if there is unrepaired or poorly repaired previous damage that could impact the vehicle's value, safety, or performance.

A qualified, well-trained collision repair facility can restore both the look and performance of even a badly damaged vehicle. In addition, well-trained collision repair facilities will be able to determine if a vehicle that may seem shiny and new to the consumer is really hiding repairs. In some cases, a used vehicle that looks like a great bargain is actually a "rebuilt" vehicle that had been declared a total loss. It may have had a previous collision or have been water damaged in a flooded area. A vehicle that has been severely damaged or totaled can be repaired properly, but step that you may want to improper repairs may not fully meet safety standards.

Having the vehicle in question inspected by a properly trained collision repair business can help you avoid "surprises" after the sale. Surprises can include paint that begins to peel, electrical problems, wheels that cannot be aligned; a trunk or window seal that leaks - or worse yet, damaged safety features such as structural damage or an airbag system that hasn't been restored to work properly.

Alcohol poses deadly consequences, especially to children. Just look at the grim statistics from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. During 2003, 8,089 passenger vehicle occupants under 15 years old were involved in fatal crashes. In 2003, 21 percent of children under 15 years old who were killed in motor vehicle crashes were killed in alcohol-related crashes. And of the children 0 to 14 years of age who were killed in alcohol-related crashes during 2003, 47 percent were pas-n the teenage years, the hormones grab hold. Pimples wreak havoc to faces, the opposite sex suddenly gets factored into the equation and mood swings become the norm.

One of the most anticipated milestones of a teen's life is, inarguably, getting a license. But before teens hit the road full speed ahead, they need to make the words "auto insurance" part of their vocabulary. It's illegal to drive without car insurance, and it's unfortunately surrounded by some daunting statistics: the risk of crash per mile driven is four times higher for 16 to 19 year olds than for older drivers, according to the Auto Insurance Advocate, an online car insurance resource. That's why auto insurance is necessary to protect teens in case of an accident as well as

As reflected in news headlines across the country, auto insurance rates have skyrocketed in most states. But there are ways to purchase a 10 percent discount. quality insurance without having to sacrifice their college savings. Here are five tips from industry experts to help teens and their parents save:

1. Educated students reap rewards. Those who get a B or better average can score discounts. The credit varies state to state, but you could get a discount of up to 25 percent. And teens who take a driving course can get about Along with a teenager's license comes the burden of paying auto insurance. But, there are some easy tips to follow to help you save.

2. Once teens have three years of driving experience, they are considered less of a risk. Unfortunately, those with three or less years are slammed with higher rates.

3. Adding a teen to your policy is always going to raise your premium, but it's cheaper than getting a teen his own policy. Get a few quotes before deciding on a compa-

Also, ask your carrier if the teen into one vehicle.

you can designate one vehicle as your young driver's on the policy. That way the insurance company won't price the premium based on the highest-risk vehicle on your policy. Note that in many states if you have three drivers and two vehicles, the teen driver will be rated on the car with the higher premium, even if the teen never drives it. But, if you have three cars and three drivers, you can lock

4. Even one ticket or accident hikes rates. More than three can threaten teens with policy cancellation. Teens shouldn't even think about drinking and driving — a D.U.I or D.W.I. can get a policy cancelled or prevent teens from getting insurance. Even if the policy is renewed, the rates will be higher for the next 3 to 5 years.

5. If you are thinking of buying your teen a car, inquire about its rating.

Spinning around the high school parking lot in a pricey convertible may sound cool, but more "high performance" vehicles or those that are favored by thieves mean higher insurance rates. But that doesn't mean you should skimp completely and get a lemon of a car. Instead, look at cars that boast safetyminded features like automatic seatbelts, airbags and antilock breaks that could also bring in discounts.

Auto insurance doesn't have to drain a teen's allowance. Parents and teens can work together to curb auto insurance costs. And that can make getting a license one milestone that was worth the wait.

car, truck or SUV with the windows sneezing or coughing, and your eyes watery and itchy? The source of your discomfort very well may be the usual environmental villains: pollen, mold spores, bacteria, smoke, road dust and exhaust chemical residues. And one reason you may be noticing their irritating and harmful effects more when you are driving is that the cabin air filter in your vehicle is dirty and needs to be replaced.

you're tems were first introduced in driving your the 1939 Nash. Nash has long since disappeared from the automotive scene; and for years there was little interest closed, do you find yourself in adding cabin filtration systems to vehicles. Things changed when European automakers began installing them in their cars in the mid-1980s to address poor air quality and its harmful effects on drivers. American automakers soon followed, beginning with cabin filtration systems on the Ford Contour and Mercury Mystique. By the end of 2000, more than 16 million vehicles were built with cabin air filters in the United States.

FILTERS Two basic types of cabin filters are in use today and are available from manufacturers like Bosch. One type is the particulate filter; the other is an activated charcoal filter. The particulate filter is a multilayer design composed of a pre-filter, an electrostatically-charged microfiber layer and a cover layer. Each layer is made with a mold-resistant filtration media that serves to ensure maximum perform-

The pre-filter is composed of a special non-woven media designed to capture larger contaminating particles, including pollen and mold spores. The electrostaticallycharged microfiber layer attracts and holds elusive smaller-size particles from smoke, bacteria, and other contaminants. The cover layer is constructed of a nonwoven filter media that adds stability and protects the microfiber layer from damage. It also provides an additional barrier against harmful contaminants.

The activated charcoal filter has all of the features of the particulate filter, plus an activated charcoal layer that absorbs harmful gases and their odors. And like their distant cousin, the home furnace filter, automotive cabin filters often feature a pleated design. The pleats provide greater surface area for higher filtration capacity, and the more pleats, the greater the filtration capacity.

KNOW WHEN TO REPLACE FILTERS Of course, cabin filters must be relatively clean to deliver such benefits. Some signs that indicate it's time to replace the cabin filter are when the vehicle's heating/air conditioning system is exhibiting reduced air flow, or when you smell a stale, musty odor coming from the air vents. Service technicians recommend replacing cabin filters every 12,000 to 15,000 miles or once a year in order to ensure good air quality for you and your passengers.

"A clean cabin filter is essential to maintaining good air quality in your vehicle," says Rob Backode, senior product manager for automotive filters for Robert Bosch Corporation, one of the world's largest suppliers of automotive parts and systems. "Your vehicle's cabin filter serves the same purpose as your furnace filter in your home. Cabin filters trap a wide range of irritating and narmful particulates, and by preventing particulate from pollen, dust, smoke and other outdoor sources from entering and contaminating the interior air space of your vehicle, cabin filters assure cleaner, fresher air for you and your passengers."

Clean cabin filters also serve to protect the HVAC system's downstream components, such as the blower motor. Yet as much as 85 percent of all original equipment cabin filters in service today have never been replaced.

Replacing a cabin filter yourself can be accomplished in as little as five minutes. "Changing the cabin filter is as easy as changing the furnace filter in your home," says Backode. Cabin filters are generally located under the vehicle's hood, inside the glove compartment or under the dashboard, and most are within easy reach for quick replacement.

igh gas prices have become a way of life. But spending your salary at the pump doesn't have to be the norm, that is if you learn how to conserve gas. Follow these easy tips to get more mileage out of your tank and keep more money in your pocket, courtesy of Amsoil. Inc.

1. Drive with caution. Don't exceed highway speed limits: Use moderate-to-easy acceleration. Gas mileage is negatively affected by fast acceleration and fast deceleration. If possible, use cruise control on highway trips. One way to save money at the gas pump this season is to Maintaining a constant switch to synthetic motor oil and drivetrain lubricants.

3. Go easy on the air conditioning. Limit use of air conditioning, especially on summer days.

4. Use synthetic lubricants. Switch to synthetic motor oil and drivetrain lubricants. Independent tests show savings of up to 5 percent using Amsoil synthetic motor oil, gear lubes and

5. Maintain your car's air filter. Install a new air filter as needed. To get optimal efficiency from your engine, it needs to breathe.

6, Take advantage of aerodynamics. Keep windows rolled up if you are travelling over 40 mph. At highway speeds, traveling with the windows open can create a wind drag that will lower your mileage. Sunroofs also disturb smooth aerodynamic air flow and reduce mileage. Avoid using a roof rack; you try to take care of as many as can reduce aerodynamic drag and improve fuel economy by placing items inside the trunk whenever possible:

7. Take good care of your tires. Make sure your tires keep them balanced and rotated regularly. Use radial tires for less friction between tire and road. Also, make sure the front end is aligned for better mileage and a longer tire life.

8. Avoid excess weight. Pack light and clean out your trunk periodically. You would be surprised how many unnecessary items most people keep in their trunks. Every 200 pounds of unnecessary weight shaves 1 mile per gallon off your gas mileage. 9. Minimize idling. One minute of idling uses more fuel than restarting your engine. When possible, avoid drive-throughs. Idling for as little as 10 minutes while you wait in line can waste 5 or 6 miles of gas. Limit warm-ups to 30 seconds.

10. Plan trips in advance. Make a list of errands and possible on the same trip.

Inspect your Car for Engine Leaks

We've all seen steaming cars on the side of the highway. Oftentimes we drive by, thinking, "That can't happen to me!" In fact, it can: An overheated engine due to cooling system failure is one of the most common causes of summer time roadside breakdowns.

Here is how it works: The cooling system keeps your engine from burning itself up. But, when coolant is lost, or when a part malfunctions within the cooling system, the engine gets too hot and may eventually need to be replaced.

According to engineers at Gates Corporation, a worldwide belt and hose manufacturer, hoses are the most likely source of coolant loss leaks because they are structurally the weakest parts of the cooling system. They may develop micro-cracks within the coolant to attack the hose reinforcement. Over time, the yarn material will weaken. Accelerated by high underthe-hood heat and constant flexing, the hose could rupture or leak under normal pressure before it has reached its expected service life.

Take a look behind the you're sure to find that a good portion of the driving public are mature drivers. As the baby boomer population ages, the percentage of seniors on the road is sure to increase even more. Thanks to several recent medical breakthroughs, seniors are enjoying longer, more independent and productive lives than ever - and continuing to drive. Driving means independence, and people who have driven for most of their lives want to keep that independence as long as possible, especially in suburban and rural areas where driving is the only way to get around.

However, despite modern medicine, certain conditions like hearing loss, reduced reaction time and impaired vision can make driving as an older adult more difficult and hazardous. That's why safety main concerns for seniors on the road.

Many compensate for their wheels of many cars and limitations by driving shorter distances and avoiding night driving, busy highways and downtown areas. However, other safety precautions can be taken to ensure that a mature driver can continue to enjoy his or her freedom. Here are some tips from the Canada Safety Council.

* Get regular vision and hearing exams. If necessary, be sure to wear eyeglasses and/or hearing aids.

* Some medications can affect driving or abilities. Be aware of any possible side effects.

* Leave space cushions to the sides and behind the car as a safety precaution.

* When planning trips, choose familiar routes and avoid dense and/or highspeed traffic.

* Background noise should be kept at a minimum. Adjust radio volume, air conditioncontinues to be one of the ing and heater blowing units to their lowest settings. Avoid using a cell phone in the car.
